PREFACE.

WHAT, then, are the literary results of the reproduction of this Bibliographical Serial ?

1. We must largely revise our ideas as to the general character of English Literature during the Restoration Age, 1660-1688, A.D.

Hitherto the books of that period have been somewhat shunned, as being either flagrantly immoral, or singularly dull. That opinion, however, has no other foundation than our own ignorance.

As a matter of fact, that Age was eminently a sober one. The general tone of its books was deeply religious; mingled with much philosophical Enquiry, and deep research into Nature. It is not at all to its discredit that, like our own Day, it was an Age of Prose.

2. The Restoration Drama deserves all the obloquy and scorn that it can ever receive; because its Dramatic Art was deliberately used for the inculcation of Vice and immoral ideas. But, as this Contemporary Bibliography clearly shows, all those Shilling Plays put together do not form Two per Centum of the total English books of the Time; whether as regards their printed bulk, or their prices.

It was the religious people first, and the Scientists next, that made the fortunes of the London Book Trade. They often subscribed as much for the folios of a single Writer, like Tillotson or Rushworth, Baxter or Ray, Manton or Bunyan, as would have bought a complete set of all the Plays of that Time.

3. Below the witty Dramatists, there was a stratum of coarse, vulgar, Writers, like Richard Head, Francis Kirkman, Captain William Hickes, Tom Brown, and Ned Ward. Any one wanting to study the low life of that Age, may gain some help from these Authors; but, for the most part, their books are mere literary rubbish.

With these men, may be associated the 'Rogue' books recorded at I. 529; II. 622; III. 692.

4. The typical Writers of the Restoration Age were essentially non-dramatic: as Cowley and Dryden as Prose Writers, Isaak Walton, Samuel Pepys, John Evelyn, Andrew Marvell, the Hon. Robert Boyle, Richard Baxter, Thomas Sydenham, John Norris of Bemerton, Archbishop Tillotson, Sir William Petty, John Bunyan, Sir Isaac Newton, and the like.

With all our national increase in population, wealth, power, and culture; will Posterity say, that we have the Equals of these men amongst us now ?

5. We must further remember that this Literature was produced during those twenty-eight years of internal oppression and political convulsions; and under the strenuous Censorship of Sir Roger L'Estrange.

II.

AFTER the Revolution, with the increasing freedom of the Press, the Questions of the Day were discussed in pamphlets all through William III.'s reign.

These included:

The Restoration of the Coinage.
The Standing Army.
The Immortality of the Soul.
The Trinitarian Controversy.
The Spanish Succession.

III.

THE History of Queen Anne's reign has yet to be written. It has the same dramatic unity as is possessed by the Restoration Age. With most astonishing alterations of fortune in it, everything at last works up to that most fateful meeting of the English Privy Council in July, 1714, while the Queen was dying: when the Whig Lords, uninvited, came to the Council; and snatching the reins of power from the Jacobite Triumvirate of Oxford, Bolingbroke, and Harcourt, thereby assured the peaceful accession to the Throne of the House of Hanover, and the final establishment of our Constitutional Liberties.

2. In this Queen's reign the principal Controversies were:

The Powers of Convocations.
The Rights of the Clergy.
Queen Anne's Bounty.
The Occasional Conformity of Nonconformists.
The Union of England and Scotland.

3. The still increasing Liberty of the Press at that time, is shown by the books of odd opinions that appeared from the pens of John Asgill, John Toland, Henry Dodwell, William Coward, M.D., and Matthew Tindal: all of which were vigorously replied to by various Christian Writers.

4. Another notable event in Queen Anne's reign was the advent of the London daily Newspaper, the 'Daily Courant,' in 1702. It was a mere Collection of News.

There were, however, at that time, three notable Journals of Opinion: Defoe's 'Review' (of which only one complete Set survives in the British Museum), Tutchin's 'Observator,' and Leslie's 'Rehearsal.'

In addition to all which, there was much strong anonymous political writing in pamphlets all through the reign.

5. Lastly, came the wonderful Literary Half-Sheets, 'The Tatler,' 'The Spectator,' 'The Guardian'; which created quite a new way of Writing in our language.

Thus, to a large extent, English Writers were now passing from Books to Serials; in order to act quicker and more widely upon the public mind.

6. Undoubtedly, the Writer who comes to the front in this Third Volume is Charles Leslie, the Jacobite Clergyman of the Church of England, who hated Roman Catholics.

The virility of that man, as in the case of Robert Parsons the Jesuit, creates an interest in him in the minds of those who utterly repudiate his opinions. He was, indeed, a worthy opponent of Daniel Defoe, who was the influential Political Writer of the reign.

IV.

TAKING a broad view of English books during these forty-two years; what kinds of books were the most popular?

Clearly, Religious Books: especially Works on the Lord's Supper; of which there were endless Editions.

2. Putting aside Divinity books; what were then the most popular Secular Works?

Voyages and Travels, and Geographical Works generally: to which taste, we were indebted, later on, for Robinson Crusoe and Gulliver's Travels.

James Knapton set the fashion in this, with Dampier's Voyages.

That led the way to the Collections of Voyages by Hacke, Churchill, Harris, and others; and even to a monthly Geographical Journal, the 'Atlas Geographus.'

John Dunton, writing in 1704, considered the Churchill's only second, as Publishers, to Richard Chiswell himself; and gives this character of them.

Mr. Awnsham, and Mr. John, Churchill: two Booksellers, and brothers, of a Universal Wholesale Trade. I traded very considerably with them for several years; and must do them the justice to say that I was never concern'd with any persons more exact in their accounts, and more just in their payments.

They are both so well furnished for any great undertaking, that what they have hitherto proposed they have gone through; with great honour to themselves, and satisfaction to Subscribers: of which their printing Camden's 'Britannia,' and the publication of 'A New Collection of Travels' lately come abroad, are undeniable instances. Sir Richard Blackmore's Poetical Works, and Mr. Locke's 'Essay,' have received no small advantage by coming abroad through their hands: and to finish their characters, they never starve an undertaking to save charges. In the 'New Collection of Travels' before mentioned, though they make about a hundred and fifty sheets [=600 folio pages], and fifty cuts, more than was promised; yet they ask their Subscribers no advance. Life and Errors, p. 280, Ed. 1705.

V.

WHAT makes the period of this Reprint so interesting is, that it is the birth-time of many of our existing Institutions: such as

'The London Gazette,'
The National Debt,
The Bank of England,
The Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge,
The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel,
Queen Anne's Bounty,

and the like.

The continuity of English History is something perfectly delightful.

VI.

PASSING from the general Literature to the London Book Trade; we have preserved for us, at page 459, a Circular issued by the London Publishers to the country Booksellers in regard to the publication of a 'History of England.'

There never was, in those Times, an entire Trade Edition of a book: but a certain set of the Publishing Booksellers would combine together into a Syndicate for the production of a particular Work: and such Syndicates usually worked together in sets, and produced books of the same general type and character. Thus, a Law Syndicate would produce Law Books; a Nonconformist Syndicate, Nonconformist Books; and the like. It will be seen, at page 576, that one of the largest of these Syndicates produced Boyer's 'French Dictionary.'

2. Another thing to be noted is, that many of the larger Volumes did not come from one Printing Press; but from several Presses printing simultaneously.

3. At pages 70, 71 and 104, we have an account of the Lotteries whereby the Law Publishers worked off the dead stock of their unbound expensive Law Books.

4. Cases also occur where two distinct Publishing Firms had the same address: as T. Leigh and D. Midwinter at R. Chiswell's address; J. Young at R. Wellington's address; etc.

5. The novelty, in the shape of books, of this last Volume is the appearance of Pocket Books in our Literature; see page 750.

6. Benjamin Tooke is one of the largest advertisers in this Volume; which seems to confirm the idea that he had some special financial interest in it.

7. For the first time, through this Reprint, we possess a tentative List, for those years, of the London Publishers and of the Country Booksellers: but this Serial by no means records them all.

VII.

IN parting from this Panorama of English Thoughts and Feelings during those eventful forty-two years; I have once again to ask for a free pardon for all errors and omissions. In my long experience of hitherto editing some Twenty-five Thousand pages of English books, I never had to contend with so many difficulties—literary, financial, and administrative—as in the production of this great Reprint.

I have also the pleasure of offering my most grateful thanks for much kind assistance; especially to those two inspired Bibliographers of the British Museum Reading Room, George F. Barwick, Esq., B.A., and Lawrence H. E. Taylor, Esq., for their unceasing kindness, and most wonderful help.

I have come to regard the great Alphabetical Catalogue there, now in the able charge of Arthur W. K. Miller, Esq., with the deepest admiration. It is, by its accurate scientific method, the great 'Novum Organon' of the Twentieth Century; so that by it we may quickly attain to the Title of any printed book whatsoever preserved in that Institution.

I also desire to express my great indebtedness to W. Carew Hazlitt, Esq., for his noble bibliographical work, carried on now for more than a quarter of a century; and especially to Mr. J. G. Gray, for his Index of Mr. Hazlitt's earlier Bibliographies.

VIII.

HITHERTO, this period of our Literature has, for the most part, been a sealed book. That book is now open.

EDWARD ARBER.

The Faith of Abraham fully explained; all other controversial points relating to Faith clearly stated and answered, together with the Remnant and first Churches peculiar Calling, with the more general Calling; proving that the Law and Gospel speaks only to those that are under them, with other chief points in controversie fully and clearly opened: the whole laid down in a plain, short, and easie, method, fitted to the understanding and retaining of the meanest Reader; so that none need longer remain in Mistakes that are willing to understand the Truth. Octavo. Price 8d.

31. A Treatise proving three worlds, three Foundations, mentioned in Scripture: whereby it is clearly made apparent that none were elected before the Foundation of the material Heavens and Earth. And likewise that the eternal Purpose only reacheth forward to the Eternity that is before us; that the Decree for entring into life, was made straight after Adam fell. Two sorts of Elections proved by the Word, with the Day of Grace; or an Offer of mercy to all that will, upon the Conditions, take hold of it; which all Israel had, till they forfeited it by their not yielding Obedience. There are also several controversial places answered: The Tree of Life, and the Tree of Knowledge, explained. Price 8d.

These three printed for M. M., and sold by E. Whitlock in Stationers Court; J. Clark at the Bible in the Old Exchange; and W. Reddish in Griffith's Buildings, near the Royal Cock Pit. Price of them together, 2s.: with The Christian's Relief, and how Christ dwells in us by his spirit, 2s. 6d.

History of Christ's Sufferings, composed out of the Prophets, Evangelists, Apostels, Fathers, and other holy Writers; with Aspirations or Prayers suitable to each Section: in order to an entire Resignation of the soul to the wills of God, according to the Example of Christ. By Dudley Garencieres, Rector of Waverton, near Chester. Octavo. Printed for S. Lowndes, near Exeter Change, in the Strand.

Margaret's, Westminster, on the 30th of January, 1696/7. By William Lancaster, D.D., Vicar of St. Martin's in the Fields.

Both printed for W. Kettilby at the Bishop's Head in St. Paul's Churchyard.

35. A Refutation of some of the false conceits in Mr. Locke's 'Essay concerning humane Understanding,' Together with a brief Answer (in Latin) to the Argumentation of (Gerard de) Vries against the innate Idea of God. TITLE INDEX.

The primary design of this Index is to remedy Robert Clavell's bungling carelessness in omitting from many of the Titles in the Text, the Names or Initials of the Authors, Editors, etc., which are to be found in the books themselves. The recovery of this information has been a most arduous undertaking, extending over months. The following references have been observed. There may possibly be others; for it has not been practicable to make this Index exhaustive and complete.

Advantage has also been taken to include in this Index the following useful helps:

(a) Similar Titles of different Books. There were, at that time, a good many resemblances of the Titles of successful Works; sometimes by Imitators, at other times by Antagonists.

(b) Different Titles to what is actually the same Text.

(c) Each of the alternative Titles of single Poems, Plays and Novels; and the Titles of Serials.

3. The English Articles, A, An and The, have been omitted at the beginning of each Title.

4. All the Personal Names in black type in this Index will be found in the next one. E.A.
